The Innovation Lab Network (ILN) is a national collaborative of participating states facilitated by the Council of Chief State School Officers to support education systems transformation. Ohio is promoting district transformations through ILN student-centered policies and practices focusing on six critical design principles: personalized learning; performance-based learning; anytime, anywhere learning; world-class knowledge and skills; student ownership of learning; and comprehensive systems of support. House Bill 487 provides an opportunity for ILN districts to consider alternative forms of assessments and evaluation. Please join us to learn more about the Innovation Lab Network.
